

Drug Names	Description
Acetohexamide Acetazolamide	Acetohexamide is an oral anti-diabetic. Acetazolamide is a carbonic anhydrase inhibitor used to increase fluid removal in glaucoma.
Celebrex Celexa Cerebyx	Celebrex is a non-steroidal anti-inflammatory. Celexa is used to treat major depressive disorders. Cerebyx is an anti-seizure medication.
Diprivan Ditropan	Diprivan is the proprietary name for propofol. Ditropan is an antispasmodic used to treat overactive or neurogenic bladder.
Ephedrine  Epinephrine	Ephedrine is a bronchodilator used to treat shock and hypotension and to encourage bronchodilation. It has a longer duration but a slower onset. Epinephrine is used to attenuate bronchospasms, anaphylaxis, allergic reactions, shock and cardiac arrest. Epinephrine is a better vasoconstrictor than ephedrine but less of a stimulator to the central nervous system.
Humulin  Humalog  Novolin	Humulin is available as short-acting (R), intermediate- acting (NPH) or long-acting (ultra lente), as well as in combination mixtures. It is of human derivation. Humalog, also known as lispro, is rapid-acting and also available in a mixture for rapid action and intermediate duration. Novolin is short- and intermediate-acting.
Hydrocodone  Oxycodone	Hydrocodone is known as Vicodin when combined with acetaminophen. Oxycodone is most commonly marketed as Percocet, Tylox and Roxicet when with acetaminophen.
Hydroxyzine  Hydralazine	Hydroxyzine is a sedating antiemetic, antihistamine anti anxiety medication. Hydralazine is used to treat hypertension.
Lorazepam  Alprazolam	Lorazepam, best known as Ativan, is a sedative/ anti-anxiety preparation. Alprazolam is best known as Xanax, used to treat anxiety.
Plavix Paxil	Plavix challenges platelet aggregation. Paxil is an antidepressant.
Xanax Zantac	Xanax is alprazolam, used to treat anxiety. Zantac is an H2 histamine antagonist used to challenge acid excessive acid production.